

MASSACHUSETTS
HIGHTECHNOLOGYCOUNCIL

Dedicated to Growth... Committed to Action

Matthew Blackburn

Matt is the Council's Public Policy and Research Manager. His role is managing various public policy and research initiatives for the organization, including leading the development of competitiveness and talent development programs and tools and engagement with elected officials and various stakeholders to advance the Council's policy agenda.

Before coming to the Council, Matt was Policy Director at the Boston Municipal Research Bureau where he managed the organization's public partnerships and led the research team in producing analysis on municipal finance, education, transportation, and city management. Prior to the Boston Municipal Research Bureau, he worked at Harvard Business School's education technology initiative where he partnered with faculty in developing cases and managed content and design work for online courses. He started his career at the Pioneer Institute for Public Policy Research working on policy issues in public finance, transportation, and economic development.

Outside of his work at the Council, Matt enjoys volunteering for local human services nonprofits and mentoring through the Big Brothers Big Sisters of Eastern Massachusetts program.

Originally from Lexington, Massachusetts, Matt received a Bachelor of Arts in Political Science and Philosophy from Tulane University, where he graduated summa cum laude.