Summary of experience

From over 25 years of working in international trade, Jodi is well-positioned to assist corporations in planning and creating world-class compliance operations and food safety programs. She has substantial experience in import, export control and sanction matters, including CBP, FDA, USDA and EPA regulations.

Her main areas of focus include:

- Trade risk assessments;
- Tariff reduction planning;
- International supply chain planning; and
- Policy and procedures development.

Prior to joining RSM, Jodi began her career with the Department of Commerce's International Trade Administration, promoting export business to east Asian countries. She then worked for a major shipping line and went on to lead global logistics and trade compliance for a Fortune 500 company. More recently, she established and ran her own boutique consulting firm, advising small and middle-market corporate clients. Jodi is a U.S. Customs Broker and certified Preventive Controls Qualified Individual (PCQI) for Human and Animal Food.
